Course Overview

For those not used to dealing with accounts, trying to read and interpret a set of accounts can seem a challenge. This course will help delegates to understand the terminology and is ideal for trust administrators and those working in a fiduciary capacity.

Content

The course takes first principles and advances to an intermediate level to provide the skills to understand what the accounts are telling us.

This course will cover the following topics:

- The format and content of accounts
- The directors report
- The income statement
- The statement of financial position

- The notes to the accounts
- Ratio analysis
- Interpretation of the figures
- Accounting standards.
- Case studies of published accounts
- States of Guernsey accounts

Benefits

In attending this course delegates will get to grips with how to read and understand a set of accounts
